Jeannie and Bob Chunn Have a Mid-life Crisis

but, at least they did it together)

Note: Jeannie (Johnson) and Bob Chunn, MHS Class of 1963, are opening their restored home, Cedarwood, as a Bed and Breakfast in October 2005.

Really can't say exactly why we did it; it just seems to have happened. We gave ourselves plenty of outs, but things happened just right just when they needed to happen. We were perfectly content living in our self-designed farmhouse (new, but built to look old) on forty acres five miles south of Raymond. Our long-held urge to own an ante-bellum house was suppressed for the time being. In the early spring of 2004 we were visiting with Gebby Smith (Gebby Burluson, class of '64) at her store in Raymond when she mentioned that she and her husband had recently looked at a house down the street that was a dogtrot log cabin beneath a modern exterior, but they decided to pass on it. We looked at each other and the "old house fever" struck again. We immediately drove by the house to look it over. We spent several days looking and poking and talking to former owners, but for various reasons (including that the modifications over the years had made it impossible to restore it to anything like the original) we also decided to pass.

We mentioned our efforts to a friend who lives in an 1836 house in Raymond. He was a part-time real estate agent and said he knew of one that might be for sale. Bob went to look at it the next day, an absolutely beautiful April day with the sun shining and the wisteria blooming. The house sat on a small hill on the back part of over 300 acres and was in thick woods more than 1.2 miles down a dirt road, crossing over two creeks. It was listed on the National Register of Historic Places, and at first sight we knew that we had to give it a try. We were not interested in buying over 300 acres, and we certainly did not want to live at the end of a 1.2-mile dirt road owned by someone else.

To shorten this story, we were able to convince the owners to sell us the house only with the house being moved to another location. We were also able to buy our first-choice lot in Raymond on which to place it. After getting both the house and the lot, we undertook to get them together at the same place. We had to bulldoze a road to move the house out of the woods. We retained a house mover out of Puckett to actually move the structures (we moved it in two pieces) in October down our newly built road, down Highway 18 and through Raymond to our lot behind the Courthouse. Then we began the tedious task of restoring the house in compliance with the standards of the U.S. Department of the Interior. Finally, in July of 2005 we were able to move into our newly restored antebellum house which we call "Cedarwood".

Cedarwood (listed on the National Register of Historic Places as the Porter House) probably originated as a pioneer's one-room cabin built at about the time of the founding of the City of Raymond. The original one-room structure was more than likely built in the late 1820s or early 1830s by Samuel Hancock as a "squatter's" cabin constructed with floor joists of logs hewn on only a single side on a stacked stone foundation and hand-riven pine shingle roof. The original foundation stones and the log floor joists support the oldest part of the house even today. Over the next decade or so, another room and central hall were added, creating the classic "dogtrot" arrangement. Over time, portions of the rear porch were enclosed to create two additional rooms. This structure, which now comprises the rear ell of the house, was renovated in the later part of the nineteenth century with extensive use of bead board, some of which remains. Principal historic architectural features of this rear ell structure are the massive stone fireplace, as well as federal era doors and nine over nine windows in the center hall. While not now outwardly visible, the primitive construction materials, techniques and methods attest to the circa 1830 origin of the Porter House.

In 1850, William M. Standard acquired the property comprising the original site of the Porter House, and it was likely he who constructed the one and one-half story front house in the then popular Greek Revival architectural style. The circa-1850 front house is unique in the Raymond area in that it is only one room deep. In contrast, most Greek Revival homes of this era consist of two rooms on each side of a central hall. The Porter House has only one room on each side of its center hall. Behind one of the front rooms, and occupying a part of what would otherwise have been the back porch (or gallery), is an original cabinet room (from the French, meaning "small room"). When the house was placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1986, the description noted that "This house is architecturally significant because it is the only example of a one-room deep antebellum, Greek Revival cottage in the surveyed area."

Significant architectural features of the front house are the 5-bay full length inset gallery, the classic Greek Revival two-panel doors, 13-foot ceilings, original hand-planed heart pine floors and ceilings (and walls in the upstairs rooms) and four walk-through jib windows.

The reality: How to move a house and reconstruct it...

In October 2004, the house moves out of the woods

And onto Highway 18 outside of Raymond, Mississippi

The "Singlewide" rounds the curve into Raymond

Jeannie and scarecrow Elvis welcome the house 's arrival

The first part of the house arrives at its new home

Jeannie, Bob, daughter Cynthia, granddaughters Hannah and Emma Claire

Log floor joists support the older section of the house

Both sections of the house are reunited on the lot in Raymond

Reconstruction begins with the installation of the roof and ceiling on the front porch (note detail at right)
November 2004

Note the progress of the rear of the house in the left column, and the front corner in the right column

Bio Updates

Doris Blackwell Smith, husband Ron, and six teenagers spent their annual spring break in the San Antonio area, renting a house in New Braunfels on the Guadalupe River. They especially enjoyed spending a day with Helen Garrison Ridgway and her husband Louis at their home in Kerrville. Doris said that it was a “cold, damp, and very WINDY Texas Hill Country” day, but they had a wonderful time. And Helen and Louis were the perfect hosts.

Bryant Boswell “has been living history, one to three weeks a month for the past two years as one of about 250 members of the nonprofit Discovery Expedition of St. Charles, Mo., official re-enactors in the national 2003-2006 Lewis and Clark bicentennial commemoration.”

Bryant, who is the only Mississippian involved in this official re-enactment, was recently asked to take over the role as the main portrayer of Meriwether Lewis.

Natalie Butler Thames’ husband, Frank, made the following comment in a recent email. “Our oldest child, Lisa, will attend her 20th high school reunion this summer. Natalie and I have decided that we have progressed from just old to damn old.” Technically, I guess that this is not a bio update. But it is certainly an enjoyable quote!

Ladene Butts Strong’s daughter Amanda Carole (Mandy) Strong married Donald Bradley Hilsmier on June 4, 2005. Mandy is an assistant professor of education at Samford University in Birmingham. She earned her Ph.D. in special education at Vanderbilt in May 2004.

Beverly Callaway Parkison and her husband Troy exhibited at Grazefest 2005 the weekend of July 23 at the Mississippi Trademart. Grazefest is an event to introduce grassfed meat products to the public: restaurants, groceries, individuals, etc. The Parkison’s Journey End Farm provided their Tamworth Pork for the Food Alley. The pork was cooked by student chefs for people to sample. Teddy Gentry of the country singing group Alabama is the organizer of Usgrassfed, sponsor for the weekend event.

Betty Claire (Freddie) Dees Stockwell has both good news and fun news for her bio update this time. Regarding her lung cancer, as of August 1 she had completed 35 radiation treatments and was getting her energy back. Her chemo doctor was pleasantly surprised with her blood counts and how far back toward normal they had come. The CT scan of the lungs showed no tumors. So the doctor is talking complete remission at this time; there, B.C. will not take any more chemo or radiation at this time and will just go back for blood work in October.

Now the fun news (remember now, this is someone who thought she had no energy) B.C. went to Mexico with a good friend and for a little more than 2 weeks stayed with natives. They had a blast though were glad to get back to air conditioning. She has had a pool put in her back yard – she says for exercise, but she certainly has been enjoying it with her grandchildren. Then she left in mid-August for a 3-week trip that turned into a 4-week trip to Venezuela. Even though she had fun, she went with a purpose: to help her friend Neptalie, a 23-year-old Miami native, bring his wife and 3-year-old daughter to the States.

Helen Garrison Ridgway and husband Louis have taken up Pilates, both love it, and Louis recommends it for anyone who has arthritis. Helen is still quilting every chance she gets. This summer she finished a quilt for a baby due in December and has three more that just need the final touches to be complete.

Margaret Hervey Folsom, daughter of Hervey Graham Folsom and husband Bob, will marry James Michael Humphreys on October 15 in Anniston, Alabama. Margaret who is completing a Ph.D. in educational psychology at the University of Alabama, is employed by Bibb County Schools in Macon, Georgia, as a school psychologist.

George Hollingsworth's daughter, Virginia, has been selected Delta Tau Delta's Sweetheart for 2005-06 at Miss. Southern. A senior majoring in education, she is a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority.

Jean Magee Cox graduated from ASCP (Administrative Support Certification Program) on June 3, 2005. Jean, who has worked for the state for about 12 years, is an employee of the State Personnel Board.

During the 2005 regular session, the Mississippi Legislature adopted a concurrent resolution commending and congratulating Coach Charlie Rugg upon his induction into the Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame Class of 2005. Page Goodrich's father, sports announcer Bill Goodrich, was inducted into the 2005 Hall of Fame Class of 2005 in ceremonies in Vicksburg also.

Jean Smith Vaughan has a new job: head of the Cybercrime Division, which is part of the Public Integrity Division of the Mississippi Attorney General's Office. Her division works in cooperation with their federal counterparts in the U.S. Attorney's Office, with the FBI, and with other D.A.s. They specialize in investigation, prosecution, training and public awareness of crimes involving the use of computers and the Internet. Jean has been with the A.G.'s office since she began interning during law school (1989), and has been an attorney there since 1992.

Jean's son Patrick, who just earned his Black Belt in Taekwondo, does tapes and editing with Jackson's television station WAPT-16. Son, Ashley, is doing independent historical research while also being assistant archivist at the Catholic Diocese of Mississippi.

Carla Sorrells Wall's son Marshall married Tiffany Rayburn at Main Street United Methodist Church in Hattiesburg on June 25. Both are magna cum laude graduates of the honors college of USM. Tiffany teaches at Oak Grove Middle School, and Marshall is completing his master's in English at Ole Miss.

Deaths

Classmates' Deaths

James Harris (Jim) Henderson died after a prolonged illness on Saturday, April 2, 2005, in Palm Springs CA.

Susan Rea McLendon died Monday, July 11, 2005, at The Village at Richardson in Richardson TX. She had suffered a stroke and died from cardiac arrhythmia.

Sydney Latimer Watkins died Wednesday, August 10, 2005, at Baptist Medical Center in Little Rock AR, following a brief illness.

Classmates' or Teachers' Family Deaths

Aline Culpepper Camp, 86, died July 13, 2005, in Meridian. A native of Whynot, Mississippi, Mrs. Camp is survived by her husband Joseph and her son Barry Camp and his wife Carla Barnes Camp. A member of Hebron Baptist Church, she served as church treasurer, bookkeeper, and organist for more than 40 years.

Allan P. Bennett, 54, passed away July 26, 2005, in Jackson after a courageous battle with cancer. An attorney and Chairman of the Board of Directors for the firm of Watkins, Ludlam, Winter and Stennis, Allan was the son of the late Nessie Bennett, MHS gym teacher and cheerleader sponsor.

Eddie Harper's mother, Mary Carruth Harper, died March 30, 2005, at the age of 80. A native of McComb, Mrs. Harper had been a Jackson resident for 58 years. As most of you know, this is Beth Cleland's mother-in-law.

John Daniel Wilkinson, brother-in-law of both Milly Holmes Wilkinson and Marty Stovall Hoover, died at age 66 on June 23, 2005. For those of us who did not realize that Milly and Marty are sisters-in-law, John Wilkinson was the brother of Milly's husband Mike Wilkinson (MHS Class of '62) and John Wilkinson's wife Sarah is Marty's older sister.

Deaths continued

Maggie Lewis Jantz's sister, Joyce Eileen Lewis, 62, died Tuesday, September 6, 2005, at her home in Jackson. A member of St. Richard Catholic Church, she and Maggie were 2 of Clovis and Polly Lewis' 12 children.

Glenda Locke White's mother Zelta Wiles Locke, 90, died Sunday, April 10, 2005. Mrs. Locke lived in Clinton and is survived by her husband of 66 years, Rupert Alvin Locke. (Note: Glenda died of ovarian cancer on November 9, 2001.)

Virginia T. Miller, 79, died Sunday, April 17, 2005. A charter member of Ridgecrest Baptist Church, Mrs. Miller was the mother of Barbara Miller Marshall She was preceded in death by her husband of 61 years, Charles L. Miller.

Tom Murphree's sister, Margaret Caroline Murphree Brown, 63, died at her home in Franklin, La., on May 29, 2005. She and her husband, Clarkson A. Brown, Jr., had two daughters: Margaret Caroline Brown Bennett of Bethlehem, Pa., and Suzanne Elizabeth Brown Eversberg of Baton Rouge, La.

Mike Nicholson's father, H. W. (Nick) Nicholson, 83, died of complications from a massive stroke on Saturday, July 9, 2005, at the V. A. Medical Center in Jackson. Mr. Nicholson was a retired small business owner, an avid golfer, and a U.S. Navy pilot during WWII.

Roddy Noone's father-in-law, Harold Arthur Brown, 85, died February 6, 2005. A native of Leland, Mr. Brown had lived at St. Catherine's Village since 1999. In addition, Roddy's mother Peggy, long-time bookkeeper for Maison Weiss, died at her home in Jackson on March 6, 2005.

Sandra Scott Salvo's mother, Rachel Hays Scott, 78, died May 25, 2005. Born in Eupora, Mrs. Scott moved to Jackson in 1955 and worked for the State Insurance Department.

Charles Simmons' mother, Lila Thigpen Simmons, died March 22, 2005, at her home in Plantersville. Mrs. Simmons, a retired MP&L senior executive secretary would have been 92 years old on her birthday, April 14.

Dorothy Eleanor Swanson, 78, died July 1, 2005, at Highland Home in Ridgeland. Mrs. Swanson was preceded in death by her son-in-law, Dr. George Twente II. Survivors include her daughter Theresa Swanson Twente of Meridian and grandsons: Michael David Twente and his wife Cheryl and Mark Edward Twente and his wife Leigh. She is also survived by great grandchild Carrie Kathleen Twente.

Sydney Latimer Watkins' nephew, Douglass Latimer McLaurin died January 26, 2005, in Jackson.

Carol Williams Parvin's mother, Sarah Bernice Knight Williams, 90, died June 11, 2005 at Highland Home in Ridgeland. A native of Collins, Mrs. Williams was a member of Colonial Heights Baptist Church.

Thank you note to the Class of 1963 from Kathy Walley

Below is an email I received from Dr. Wayne Walley's widow, Kathy. If you remember, Dr Walley wrote us an enthusiastic R.S.V.P for our 40-Year-Reunion Banquet. That night we kept looking for him and wondering what could have happened. We found out the next week that he had been rushed to the hospital the night before our banquet and that he died the next week.

Kathy and Wayne and Mike and I became friends when our children attended preschool at Broadmeadow Methodist Church here in Jackson. We drifted apart when Wayne accepted a position with Delta State University and he and his family moved to Cleveland. Mike and I were particularly looking forward to seeing them at the reunion. We had a lot of "catching up" to do.

After we heard of Dr. Walley's death, I wrote Kathy a note and enclosed the emails that many of you sent me after hearing of his death, knowing that she would want at some point to know how much Wayne had meant to his tenth grade biology students at Murrah (even the ones who gave him "fits")....Estelle

Dear Estelle,

It is hard to believe that it is almost two years since Wayne's death. It has taken me this long to respond to your card and the e-mails you sent me. I recently got the cards out that I got after Wayne's death. I just wanted you to know how much it meant to me and the boys that you sent a card and the e-mails from former students.

Wayne wanted so much to come to the reunion but life doesn't always work out like you want.

Wayne was such a wonderful person and teacher. He has left his mark on so many lives. I know my life is so much richer for having been married to him for 37 years. There will never be another Wayne Walley.

Please know how grateful I am for your thoughtfulness in sending a note and the e-mails to me.

Please take care!

*Fondly,
Kathy Walley*

Teaching George Twente How To Fly

By Gale Johnson

Many of us knew George Twente as a husband, friend, father, doctor, classmate, and grandfather, just to name a few of the roles George Twente was involved in. I had the pleasure of being a friend, classmate, and first flight instructor. The following is my account of teaching George how to fly, taken from my Pilot Flight Log.

On June 7, 1966, I was working at the Madison, Mississippi airport as a flight instructor. Not much was going on, as it was a slow day, and I went to walk George. He told me he was looking into taking flying lessons and had been to several other airports, so when I told him I was instructing at Madison, he said, "That settles it. I'll learn to fly here." So, off we went into the wild blue yonder on his first lesson. Most students take quite some time getting their private license, which takes 40 flight hours, flying now and then when the mood strikes. Not George. We made two more flights on the 8th, another on the 10th, again on the 13th, and his first solo on the 14th. On the 19th, we made our second cross country flight, and I signed him off to make his solo cross country flights. On July 3rd, I recommended George for his private check ride, which he passed. July 4th, we did some night flying and watched a fireworks show at the Jackson Country Club from the airplane. That was a fun flight I'll always remember.

A few days later, I went to work flying on another job, but on August 21st, George and I went to Decatur, Alabama to fly a WWII Stearman biplane, which I had helped restore back to original from a crop duster. Since it was built to teach aerobatics, we indulged ourselves with loops, rolls, and what ever else we could try. This had to be when the aerobatic bug bit George, for he went on to become a very good aerobatic pilot.

I can't find anymore flights with George as his instructor. I did visit him in Florida sometime after I had moved to Tuscaloosa, then we would see each other at class reunions, but that was about it. Then in about 1997, I found myself flying for a corporation out of Tuscaloosa and going to Decatur, Alabama on a regular basis. I contacted George, and he took me out and showed me one of his airplanes, along with some parts of the Pitts he was beginning to build. Not long after that he and Teresa moved to Meridian, where he continued building the Pitts, eventually finishing it. While he was building it, I was restoring an airplane, and when I had it finished, I flew down to Meridian and took him for a ride in my airplane. Somewhere during this time frame, he took me for a ride in a two place ultra lite. While flying the ultra lite, at some point he told me I had it, meaning for me to fly it, I didn't catch what he said, and we started flying in circles over this parking lot for garbage trucks. After about 6 or 8 circles, he said, "I have it", (I got it that time) and I told him I thought he had it all along. We laughed about that a lot.

After I moved to Texas, George finished the Pitts, and wanted to take me for a ride. Somehow we just never could make it happen.

George was the best student I ever had. A little bit of me went west with George.

The Bungers Share Concerns and Joyful News

In a recent email Roger and Elaine Bunger expressed their sorrow in hearing about the illnesses or deaths of several of classmates. Their family also has been through a time of great sadness that has recently turned into joy, and they wanted to share their happiness with the class.

Their son David and his wife Jennifer lost a baby last summer. It was a very difficult time for the entire family. Then this past January, much to everyone's surprise, Jennifer became pregnant again. However, In February she was put to bed when she experienced problems, which put her at risk of losing the baby. The doctors worked hard to keep Jennifer pregnant, but she had to be hospitalized the last week in May. June 2 Jennifer, just into her twenty-sixth week, delivered a 1 pound 13 ounce baby girl. By the grace of God, their "sweet girl" Helen went home on August 12, weighing a very healthy 4 pounds 12 ounces, at just 36 weeks old. As Elaine said, "She is truly our gift from God!! Some good does come out of sadness. Our prayers go out to those who have lost their love ones and those who are ill." Roger and Elaine Bunger

Duling School slated to become focus of Fondren Neighborhood Renaissance

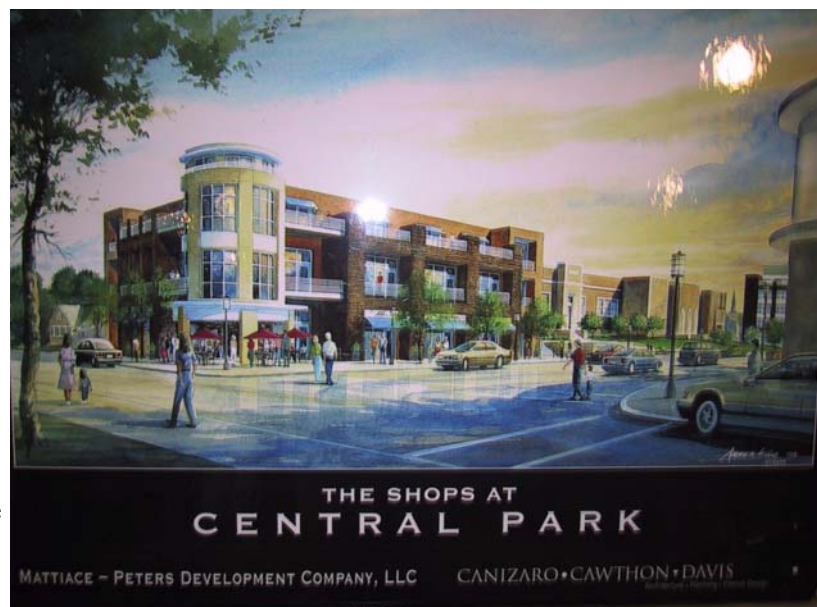

Fondren's 1927 Duling Elementary School is slated for major changes. No longer will the building be home to 'Readin' and 'Ritin' and 'Rithmetic but to professionals, artists, retirees, and the like. Developer Mike Peters plans to turn the historic school into a 120-unit residential space flanked by two condominium buildings taking their Art Deco-styling from a nearby office building (remember where Keeton's Frame Shop was located) as well as the Pix Theatre.

Camp Best, executive director of the Fondren Renaissance Foundation, says, "It's going to be the biggest thing that's happened to Fondren, and it's going to change the face of Fondren." In fact, the area is set to become a full-fledged shopping and dining district.

The architectural rendering shows the proposed development as three phases spread across five acres, collectively called "Central Park". The project's initial construction should begin in January and could top $20 million.

The Mississippi Legislature in 2005 made such development possible by enacting a law allowing school districts to turn over property for private development, while retaining 20 percent equity in the project. Before this legislation, a district could dispose of property only by donating it to a non-profit or selling it at auction.

Five developers submitted plans to the board of the Jackson Public School System. Peters' design most impressed the board for its "attention to preservation fused with modern additions". FRF director Camp Best feels that the three-phase project will be completed by the end of 2007.

Spotlight on Pat Latta Crook

When Patsy Latta left Murrah in 1963, she attended Ole Miss and graduated with a double major in sociology and art. One week after receiving her diploma, Patsy married Jon Crook, whom she met at college. Jon is a native Mississippian whose family had moved to Dallas when he was still quite young.

Pat became a military wife for three years while Jon was in the Army and lived in Fort Sill, Okla., and Fort Bragg, N.C. After Jon was discharged, they moved to Plano, Tex., a northern suburb of Dallas. Thirty-four years later, it's still home.

In the intervening years, Jon made his career in the insurance business, and Pat taught in the Plano school district. Most importantly, they had three children – Lowry, an attorney in Washington, D.C.; Hunter, who manages a Best Buy store in McKinney, north of Dallas; and Katherine, now in her first year of veterinary school at University of Florida after graduating from Sewanee, University of the South.

Pat says life in suburbia has been great, but it was also great to do a bit of traveling: England, Hawaii, and China were favorites. Pat and Jon were in China during the Tiananmen Square crisis in 1989. An interesting and historical time says Pat, but one she probably wouldn't want to repeat.

These days Pat spends her time substitute teaching and babysitting Hunter's children. "They are so much fun, and it brings me great pleasure," she says. "I really look forward to my time with the grandkids."

Marty Stovall Hoover and Patsy Latta Crook visit at the 40-Year-Reunion

Marty (Stovall) and Paul Hoover's New Venture

Marty Stovall Hoover wrote a series of fascinating emails concerning their new business venture in Florida. Below are excerpts from those emails:

"I will be finishing this school year on May 20; and once again I am retiring from teaching. As you may know, Paul & I purchased the largest and one of the oldest buildings in downtown Arcadia just one year ago. Hurricane Charley ravaged it but the structure is still solid. Our insurance policy paid out in full; and as a result, what started out as a remodeling job turned into a complete renovation. The building houses a tea room, a candy shop, an eye doctor's office, an ice cream shop, an antique store, a real estate office, and some law offices. However, the largest single portion of the building had been a bar. We have decided to reopen it, not as a bar but as a Banquet & Reception Hall [called the Arbor] with Yours Truly running it. We are really excited about our new venture. We plan to be open by June 1. I already have 2 bookings and the word is spreading. We will keep you posted as we progress."

"The opening date has been moved to July 1. My first booking is scheduled for July 9. My sign is already up and I am receiving inquiries almost daily. I have had inquiries and/or bookings to use it for Quenci-ettas (Mexican girls' 15th birthday "Coming Out" Parties), Wedding Receptions, a Chamber of Commerce Banquet, and a High School Class Reunion, as well as a Dinner Theatre. If all of these things pan out, I will surely be busy----but very happy! As of this writing, I have 3 confirmed bookings between July & November and have not even begun marketing yet. From the positive reaction of the community and newspapers, Paul and I are excited about the prospects for the future."

"(By the way, I am officially retired, now.) Friday was the last day of school for the students. I had to go back on Monday to finalize my paperwork---you know, Cumulative Folders, but I am done, now! Really, it is bittersweet. I will ...miss the children and the wonderful people with whom I worked, but I will stay in touch with many of them through my Mary Kay business. Also, I plan to substitute teach (at only that school) next fall. I say I PLAN to substitute, because it depends on how busy I am with the Arbor. I already have 6 confirmed bookings between July and the end of November and I have not even started advertising yet! I do have a sign on the front of the building, which I will send to you on a follow-up e-mail. I am really excited about this new venture. I will keep you posted on how it is coming along. By the way, I already have a booking for NEXT JUNE for a high school class reunion! I wish I could really show off and host a reunion of sorts for our class. Wouldn't that be neat?"
